I'm late! I'm late!

Alice (who was sitting with her book and her sister on the side of a grassy hill, underneath the shade of a tree) saw a white rabbit bounding towards his hole. Having never seen a rabbit fully dressed, she ran after him quickly...

In a room with high ceilings, the little girl saw a tall table with keys on it. Beneath it was a glass bottle with a red label saying "drink me", so deciding that it wasn't poison, she took a gulp and started shrinking!

When Alice – who was hungry- saw a cake that said "eat me", she got bigger, and bigger and bigger!

The snow white rabbit ran across the room and dropped his posh fan. As Alice picked it up she began to shrink again...

Alice began to cry and the room began to fill with crystal clear tears. Suddenly, a bright yellow duck, a black and white dodo and a minute dormouse appeared. Feeling upset, Alice clambered onto a glass bottle to stay dry and safe.

Help! Help! Please help me!

If you eat one side, it will make you taller and the other will make you smaller.

The White Rabbit suddenly appeared again and led Alice to a fluorescent green caterpillar who was sitting on a mushroom holding a wooden pipe and wearing a glass monocle.

Suddenly a bright pink, snow white and widely grinning Cheshire Cat appeared in front of the little adventurer and pointed enthusiastically towards a grand tea party in front of the smiling feline.

Go that way and join them at the table!

At the tea party there was the Mad Hatter, the March Hare and a doormouse.

Welcome!

Why are you painting them red?

After the tea party Alice left and went to a garden where some gardeners were painting white roses red.

Off with her head!

The Queen of Hearts made Alice play croquet with a group of flamingoes and hedgehogs.

The thieving Knave of Hearts stole some of the Queens beautiful strawberry tarts. Furiously Alice shouted out, "You're just a pack of cards."

Alice woke up and found she was covered in dried-up leaves. Her sister was saying, "Wake up, wake up."
